

AIHE INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH CONFERENCE

Polycrisis and the Future of Education 2026

21 October 2026 | Melbourne, Australia

The Adelaide Institute of Higher Education (AIHE) invites academics, researchers, doctoral candidates, business practitioners, and industry professionals to submit original papers for presentation at our inaugural one-day international research conference.

The world is experiencing a polycrisis — where multiple, compounding disruptions in geopolitics, economics, technology, and society interact and amplify one another. This conference asks a fundamental question: how do our institutions, businesses, and education systems adapt, lead, and endure?

Selected presenters will share their work in a single-room, collegial setting designed for genuine dialogue across disciplines and sectors. All accepted papers will be subject to double-blind peer review and published in the AIHE 2026 Conference Proceedings (ISBN-registered digital volume).

Conference Themes

We welcome submissions from education, business, economics, public policy, and the social sciences. Papers may address any of the following three themes. Cross-theme and interdisciplinary work is strongly encouraged.

1

Business Resilience and Economic Adaptation in a Polycrisis World

How organisations survive and thrive when multiple crises converge

- Business strategy and leadership under geopolitical and economic uncertainty
- Supply chain fragility, reshoring, and operational resilience
- SME survival strategies in volatile and emerging markets
- ESG, sustainable finance, and responsible investment in uncertain times
- Workforce transformation, the future of work, and organisational culture
- Entrepreneurship and innovation as responses to systemic disruption

2

Technology, AI, and the Transformation of Institutions

From tools to structural change — across business and education

- Artificial intelligence in business operations, decision-making, and strategy
- AI in pedagogy, assessment, and academic integrity
- Digital disruption of industries: finance, healthcare, logistics, and education
- Data ethics, privacy, and the governance of emerging technologies
- Cybersecurity and organisational risk in a hyperconnected world
- Preparing students and workforces for an AI-augmented economy

3

Institutions, Governance, and the Social Contract Under Pressure

Rebuilding trust and legitimacy when systems are strained

- Higher education governance, regulation, and quality assurance in crisis conditions
- Internationalisation of education and business in a de-globalising world
- Public policy responses to economic inequality and social fragmentation
- Cross-sector partnerships between universities, industry, and government
- Organisational ethics and institutional accountability in turbulent times
- Community resilience, social cohesion, and the role of knowledge institutions
